"HOE OUT YOUR ROW !

One lazy day a farmer's boy Was boeing out the corn,
And moodly had listened long
To hear the dinner horn;
The welcome blast was heard at last,
And down he dropped his hoe;
But the good man shouted in his car
"My hoy, hoe out your row!"

Although a "hard one" was the row, To use a plowman's phrase.

And the lad, as sailors have it,
Beginning well to "haze,"
"I can," said he, and manfully
He seized again his hoe.

And the good man smiled again to see
The boy hoe out his row.

The lad the text remembered,
And proved the moral well,
That perseverance to the end
At last will nobly tell.
Take courage, man' resolve you can,
And strike a vigorous blow;
In life's great field of varied toil,
Always hoe out your row.

rest—we know where he is and what he is about, and sleep is a gracious state; but then he wakes up bright and early, and begins tooting, pouting, hammering, singing, meddling and asking questions; in short, overturning the peace of society generally for about thirteen hours out of every twenty-four.

Everybody wants to know what him—everybody is quite sure that he can't stay where they are. The cook can't have him in the kitchen, where he infests the pantry to get flour to make paste for his kites, or melt lard in the new sauce pan. If he goes into the wood-shed, he is sure to pull the wood pile down upon his head. If he be sent up into the garret, you think for a while that you have settled the problen, till you find what a boundless field for activity is at once opened, amid all the packages boxes, bags, barrels, and cast off rubbiels there Old letters, newspapers, trunks of miscellane-ous contents, are all rummaged, and the very reign of chaos and old night is instituted. He sees endless capacities in all, and he is always hammering something or knocking something Yesterday morning Judge Wilson charged the Grand Jury. He made reference to the fugitive data can at Observe and Company of Observe and C quite down to the lower floor, and everybody declares that Charles must be kept out of the

But he comes home nouser and more breezy than ever, having learned of some tweaty other Charleys every separate resource for keeping up a commotion that the superabundant vitality of each can originate. He can dance like Jim Smith—he has learned to smack his lips like Joe Brown—and Will Briggs has shown him how to new like a eat, and he enters the premises with a new war-whoop, learned from Tom Evans. CHAGRIN FALLS, Nov. 5, 1858.

EDITOR LEADER — DEAR SIR — Among the inby. There is something significant in the old English phrase, with which our Scriptures render us familiar, a man child-a man child.-There you have the word that should make you think more than twice before you answer the nestion :- "What shall we do with Charley?" For to-day he is at your feet; to-day you can make him laugh; you can make him cry, you can persuade, coax, and turn him to your pleasure; you can make his eyes fill and his bosom swell with recitals of good and noble deeds; in short, you can mould him, if you will take the

But look ahead some years, when the little coice shall ring in deep bass tones; when that small foot shall have a man's weight and ramp; when a rough beard shall cover that little, round chin, and the willful strength of manhood fill out that little form. Then you would give worlds for the key to his heart, to be able to turn and guide him to your will, but, if you will lose that key now he is little, you may search for it carefully with may search for it carefully, with tears, some other day, and never find it.

Old housekeepers have a proverb, that one hour lost in the morning is never found all day. It has a significance in this case.

One thing is to be noticed about Charley, that, rude, and busy, and noisy as he is, and the same a carret rules and noisy as he is, and irksome as carpet rules and parlor wave are to him, he is still a social little creature, and wants to be where the rest of the household are. A room everso well adapted for play can not charm him at the hour when the family i in re union; he hears the voices in the parlor, and his play room seems desolate. It may be warmed by a furnace and lighted with gas, but it is hama's warmth and light he shivers for ; he yearns for the talk of the family, which he so he will not commit one if you will let him stay

The instinct of the little one is Nature's warnmother who has neglected it because it was irk some to have the child about, has longed ward and meddlesome, and a plague in genera the boy has found at last his own company i the streets, in the highways and hedges, where he runs until the day comes when the parent want their son, and the sisters their brother and then they are scared at the face he bring heir business during this year:

Then let him have some place in your house where it shall be no sin to hammer and pound, and make all the litter his heart desires and his various schemes require. Even if you can ill afford the room, weigh well between that safe asylum and one which, if denied, he may make for himself in the street.

Of all devices for Charley which we have, a few shelves which he may dignify with the name of a cabinet is one of the best. He picks up shells and pebbles and stones, all odds and ends, nothing comes amiss; and if you give him a pair of scissors and a little gum, there is no end of the labels he will paste on, and the hours he may innocently spend sorting and ar-A bottle of liquid gum is an invaluable re
